

1981-2016

Connecting the insolvency industry
for 35 years

Introduction by Alberto Núñez-Lagos, President of INSOL Europe (2015-2016)

"I am proud to introduce this 35th birthday brochure as President of INSOL Europe.

INSOL Europe is what its members are: very relevant, highly qualified leading professionals, academics and judges of the restructuring and insolvency sector. There is no other cross border organisation in Europe with such relevance. As an organisation, we are permanently consulted by the EU institutions, UNCITRAL and local organisations about insolvency and restructuring matters. As an organisation, we invest a very significant amount of time and resources to build specialised forums and think-tanks such as the Insolvency Office Holders Forum, Academic Forum, Turnaround Wing, Financial Institutions Group, Judicial Wing, Young Members Group, Anti-Fraud Forum and EU Research.

Also, our publications such as the Case Register or Eurofenix give us enormous relevance in the market.

The restructuring and insolvency world is evolving into an out-of-court solution without disregarding in-court solutions. In the future we will see a much more integrated insolvency environment with corporate law and insolvency law very much integrated. Our members will be ready to lead such a process. We at INSOL Europe have always led and continue to lead the changes in the insolvency sector.

We must be very proud of our organisation and continue working and benefiting as individual members and sponsors, actively participating in the events and forums.

Happy birthday."

Alberto Núñez-Lagos,
Berlin, October 2015

Where it all began

When a French association then headed by Yannick Pavec organised a conference in Vienna in 1980 to which Yannick had invited speakers from at least six other European countries, some of those present thought that this gathering of practitioners was too successful an occasion not to be repeated. Sir Kenneth Cork, who had then just completed his term of office as Lord Mayor of London, together with his firm, therefore organised a meeting in London for the following year (1981) and in the meantime, arranged for the incorporation of AEPPC in France with many of the people who had come to Vienna forming its first Council.

During the following year (1982) a similar development occurred, when the British practitioners celebrated the 21st birthday of their Association, the IPA, with a conference in Cape Cod, USA, to which it invited North American practitioners and as a result of that success, Richard Turton (UK) and Ian Strang (Canada) founded INSOL International.

AEPPC joined INSOL International two years later (1984) as a member association and thereafter, conferences continued to be held every year in different locations. The themes of the business sessions slowly developed, firstly by concentrating on a different specialist subject each year with comparative papers from different countries. At the same time, the breakout sessions which were also started, gave more opportunities for cross-border comparisons as well as for networking, which was also becoming an increasingly valuable feature of the meetings.

During these first 10 years, the administration of AEPPC was conducted out of the offices of Sir Kenneth Cork's firm, Cork Gully. Sir Kenneth retired as the first President in 1990, after which later Presidents had first a two year and later a one year term of office.

As more people assumed the leadership, the emphasis changed and this became particularly notable when Richard Turton retired from professional practice and became AEPPC's first Executive Director. The annual conferences ceased to be the only activity known to the general membership which was made possible by the establishment of a number of committees to widen participation – committees for publications, future plans, financial support, membership, constitution and technical matters.

INSOL Europe today

INSOL Europe today is a large and influential organisation, shaping the environment in which it operates, which in turn means that we are in good shape for the future.

The financial crisis has shown what a significant force the insolvency industry is and the events of the past few years have now given us much to think about in terms of lessons learned, in procedures and compliance. For INSOL Europe, this means that we have grown in stature as we have grown in members and this is a very exciting period in our evolution.

INSOL Europe is at the forefront of key milestones in the insolvency world and we are well positioned to canvass and convey our industry's views to the decision-makers across Europe.

New opportunities also present new challenges, which is why the law has to evolve to take account of such changes. We must also be flexible and agile in our approach – be practical, thoughtful and original, maintaining the high standards that have always been the hallmarks of the insolvency industry as we navigate through uncharted territory together.

Our quarterly journal "eurofenix" covers all the latest developments within the industry, with more in-depth articles focusing on particular jurisdictions or issues. It also contains round-ups of recent events and looks ahead to forthcoming gatherings.
